

Some Good Seen Coming Out Of Ike-Khrushchev Exchange

By David Ottaway
PRESIDENT Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev declared Monday their intentions of exchanging visits to each other's country. An American correspondent in Moscow wrote that it may "mark the end of one era and the beginning of a new one in relations between the two countries."

In light of these proposed peace pilgrimages, The Daily Record yesterday conducted a telephone survey of the area in an effort to sound out local reaction to them.

The consensus was that possibilities of increasing understanding and promoting better relationships were good. There was skepticism voiced that the trips might turn into mere propaganda campaigns and thus not accomplish much more than past trips made by lesser officials of the two governments.

Elmer D. Christine, former state commander of VFW, felt that there was some danger of trying to convert the visits into propaganda sessions but that the good parts definitely outweighed the possible bad parts. He said "Khrushchev doesn't know all about this country that he ought to know. He'll see that we are more united than he thinks we are."

Christine said that very likely it will be beneficial for us since Khrushchev will change some of his thinking toward us when he sees many of the beautiful things we have that Russia does not have.

Dr. Thomas E. Larkin, Mountaintown resident, was skeptical of Khrushchev's reasons for coming here other than for propaganda purposes. He noted that President Eisenhower's attitude has changed considerably in the past two weeks toward a trip to Russia. "It won't do any harm and it might do some good."

Miss Lillian Stark, history teacher at the Stroud Union High School, termed the proposed visits "a remarkable idea". She said that "so much exchange of ideas and seeing of each other's countries should help both countries to see that we don't want war."

Sam P. Block, newspaper dealer in Stroudsburg, felt that it was good for everyone to see how the other person lives. Much of the trouble in the world has as its basis misunderstanding. "Khrushchev doesn't understand our system and perhaps it'll do him good to see how we really live."

He felt that the comparison Khrushchev will get between the two countries will be good for him. However he warned of propaganda from the Premier.

Alfred A. Morse, social studies teacher at Stroud Union High School, said about the visits, "I don't think it would hurt and it should be constructive." He thought that everything was worth trying for world peace and that Nixon's trip was an "experiment in the modern age" toward this goal.

Thomas Knepp, scientist and instructor, felt that it could turn out to be a good thing. "If we can get increased understanding between the two countries it could do us some good."

Mrs. Helen Ecker, secretary to the librarian at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, was not sure whether it was good or bad. She did not like the idea of President Eisenhower going over there and was skeptical as to how much Mr. Eisenhower would really see of the people and land.

She said that Vice President Nixon's visit shows they have some knowledge of and friendship for the people of America.

Marcia Clapp DeRocco, an artist in Bushkill, feared that Khrushchev's visit would only be for the sake of propaganda and not for world peace. "A zebra does not change its stripes," she said. Mrs. DeRocco is very much in favor of cultural exchange and of showing Khrushchev our country if it would bring the two countries' governments closer together.

Rev. Harold C. Eaton, pastor of the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church, said that "in the majority of incidents people's impressions are very vital. By both President Eisenhower's and Premier Khrushchev's visits, there can be a better reaction on the part of the peoples in the two countries toward each other."

While there is probably an element of propaganda in each one's visit, they are both interested right now in strengthening international relationships. Such a visit, he feels, can help to do this.

The survey indicates that while people are hopeful that the two visits will mark the end of an era of tensions and fear they are also somewhat doubtful that there will be any substantial change in the diplomatic tactics of Soviet government officials.

House Approves Stiff Fines For Sunday Sales

HARRISBURG (AP)—The House overwhelmingly approved Tuesday an administration plan to impose stiff penalties for Sunday retail sales violations in Pennsylvania.

The 181-21 vote—after a brief discussion—came almost as an anticlimax to the rousing debate last week that saw opponents attack the measure on religious grounds.

The Senate-passed measure, now ready for the expected signature of Gov. Lawrence, would increase the fine for Sunday violations from $4 to $100 for the first offense.

Subsequent offenses within a year would be subject to a fine of $200.

State Delays $125 Million Road Program

HARRISBURG (AP)—Pennsylvania will delay awarding of up to $125 million dollars worth of highway contracts because federal aid for the project is uncertain at the present time, highway Secretary Park H. Martin said Tuesday.

He told the Associated Press that many large contracts would be delayed "until the picture is clarified in Washington." He declined to name specific projects.

The House Ways and Means Committee last week in Washington recommended a slowdown in federal aid for roads, principally the huge interstate road program. The federal government foots the bill for 90 percent of the cost of the interstate system, the states 10 percent.

Engineering Okayed
Martin said that although contracts will be delayed his department will go ahead with engineering and design plans. And he said his 1959-61 budget requests now before the State Legislature would not be appreciably affected if Congress continues to provide aid for primary, secondary and urban roads. This is done on a 50-50 basis.

Since the federal interstate projects require only a 10 percent matching grant by the state, even a cutback on these would not materially reduce the commonwealth's road construction outlay for the next two years, said Martin.

Governors See Higher Taxes

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—American governors took a hard look at taxes Tuesday and saw nothing ahead but further boosts. They figured fresh levies will be needed to finance the home front and defenses to meet the Soviet nuclear threat.

These would be piled up on top of record increases already chalked up at the state level in the last year.

The chief executives were widely agreed, too, that a heavy cutback or halt in the national highway program would harm state economies severely. But here and there, a governor suggested the program is too big.

At the same time, the controversial measure spells out specific items that may not be sold at retail on Sundays. They include clothing, furniture, housewares, furnishings, appliances, hardware, tools, paints, building and lumber supplies, jewelry, silverware, watches, clocks, luggage, musical instruments, records and toys, excluding novelties and souvenirs.

The law would take effect in 30 days after the governor puts his name to it.

Amends 1937 Act
The legislation would amend the 1937 penal code which, in one section, incorporates the same wording of the Sunday blue laws originally passed in 1794.

Other legislative developments:
Taxes—A new showdown on the 4 percent sales tax compromise may be put off until next week.

Rep. Stephen McCann, House Democratic leader, said after a bipartisan meeting of House leaders that he was optimistic that the 148½-million-dollar package would pass.

House Republicans plan to take the measure up at their caucus Wednesday. The big question to be decided there is how many GOP votes will be put up to help Democrats pass the bill.

Annexation—Second class townships would be given the same rights as boroughs and cities to annex portions of other municipalities under legislation passed by the Senate.

At present, boroughs and cities may annex portions of second class townships but the latter cannot do the same to boroughs and cities.

Senate Group Berates Hoffa

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate rackets committee said Tuesday "it would be hard to find a labor leader who has so shamelessly abused his members or his trust" as President James R. Hoffa of the Teamsters Union.

Unless steps are taken to curb his power, the eight-man committee said in a unanimous report, Hoffa will "destroy the decent labor movement in the United States."

Nixon Ends Tour Of Poland With Visit To Ghetto Site

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—Winding up his handshaking tour in the Communist world, Vice President Richard M. Nixon Tuesday called for an end to racial prejudice and an increase in the free international exchange of ideas.

Nixon flies back to Washington Wednesday after 15 days in the Soviet Union and Poland. He was the highest U. S. official to visit the Communist world since World War II. His trip is now to be followed by the exchange of visits between President Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Cheers continued to echo in Nixon's ears as he went through Warsaw, but the tour took on a somber note with a visit to the site of Warsaw's Jewish ghetto, obliterated in World War II by the Nazis.

The ghetto is about one-third rebuilt, although only a few thousand Jews remain of Poland's prewar three million.

Nixon walked through the rubble, looked around and told newsmen: "We think here of the terrible suffering of the people of Warsaw and Poland. This ruined building is more than a memorial. It brings home lessons that we forget too quickly."

"Men of good will, whatever their economic, political or social philosophy should be united in fighting against prejudice because we have here a grim reminder of what happens when such forces are unleashed," Nixon said.

"As we move into what we hope will be a period of peace, we must wage a battle against the forces that would inspire and stimulate such religious and racial hatreds."

He also laid a wreath on a mass grave outside Warsaw in the Palmiry Forest, where 2,000 Poles were slaughtered by the Nazis. He was the first foreign dignitary to visit the site, the Poles said.

Dines With Gomulka
He had lunch with Polish officials, including Communist party chief Wladyslaw Gomulka and Premier Jozef Cyrankiewicz.

Nixon's press spokesman said serious subjects were discussed, but did not elaborate. The spokesman added that Nixon is "highly satisfied with the success of his visit to Poland."

Warsaw was abuzz with rumors that Eisenhower will come here when he visits the Soviet Union, but there was no official confirmation of this.

Nixon visited the rector and faculty of the University of Warsaw as 2,000 Polish students cheered.

Nixon stopped briefly at St. John's cathedral in the old section of the city.

Collision Sends Two To Hospital

TWO PERSONS were injured when the cars they were driving collided on Route 611 about four miles north of Stroudsburg at 4:45 p. m. yesterday.

State Police of the Stroudsburg barracks identified them as Rodney C. Shaffer, 22, of 131 Violet St., Johnstown, a waiter at Sagamore Camp near Milford, and Geraldine Werkheiser, 21, Tannersville.

Shaffer was reported in serious condition last night in Monroe County General Hospital with fractures of the right leg and left arm and multiple bruises and cuts.

Miss Werkheiser was admitted for treatment of a cut of the lower lip, possible concussion and cuts of the legs. Her condition was reported fair.

Troopers said Shaffer's southbound car apparently skidded into the path of the Werkheiser vehicle.

House Calls Fish Inquiry For Aug. 17

HARRISBURG (AP)—The House investigation of Pennsylvania fishing conditions was scheduled Tuesday to start Aug. 17.

Chairmen William B. Curwood (D-Luzerne) of the House Fisheries Committee said over 100 organizations and individuals have requested time to testify.

He said the committee could decide after the first hearing whether or not to hold additional hearings.

He pointed out that the committee has to make a report to this session of the General Assembly and that time is growing short.

Policy Probe
The committee was directed, in a resolution adopted July 28, to look into the reasons behind a decline in the sale of fishing licenses in the past few years.

However, prominent committee members have indicated they expect the investigation to look thoroughly into fish commission policies and practices.

The initial hearing will start at 9 a. m. in the new House caucus room in the Capitol Building. Curwood said anyone else wanting a chance to be heard should contact him by mail as soon as possible.

Red Leader To Travel From Coast To Coast

Doubt Still Shrouds Fate Of Tax Measure

HARRISBURG (AP)—A behind-the-scenes tug-of-war Tuesday night confused the question of whether the House leadership would be able to round up enough votes to pass a 4 percent sales tax compromise.

Democrats seemed in a position to raise all but about 15 votes to pass the 148½-million-dollar measure to boost the 3½ percent sales levy to 4 percent.

But Republicans, who had pledged 15 votes to support it before the program collapsed in disagreement July 15, appeared at odds among themselves on whether the pledge should be renewed.

Rep. Albert W. Johnson,

House Republican floor leader, changed his optimism of earlier in the day to an attitude approaching gloom.

The GOP caucus will meet Wednesday to decide on support of the tax bill. Johnson declined to predict the outcome but other Republicans said privately it would be an uphill battle.

One GOP member, who asked not to be identified, said a prevailing opinion seemed to be among his colleagues that more than a half-dozen Democrats in marginal districts who were seeking to be excused from voting for the sales tax bill should not be taken off that hook by Republican votes.

Rep. Stephen McCann, Democratic floor leader, is seeking a final House vote Wednesday and the Senate is standing by to receive it.

Laundry and dry cleaning interests, including labor unions, representing their employees, appeared in the House in an attempt to block the measure.

In addition to increase the rate, the bill would extend the sales tax to laundry and dry cleaning services, soft drinks, automobile inspection fees and beer and liquor purchased retail from distributors or state stores.

$39 Billion Defense Bill Sent To President's Desk

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress passed Tuesday a bill carrying $39,228,239,000 to pay the expenses of U. S. defense in the coming year.

The House acted by a voice vote and the Senate by an 85-0 rollcall to send the compromise measure to the White House.

Before disposing of this biggest money bill, the House heard Rep. Clarence Cannon (D-Mo.) criticize a 35-million-dollar allotment for advance planning on a second nuclear aircraft carrier for the Navy.

Too Much Emphasis
Cannon, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, contended there has been too much stress on big carriers and too little on submarines and missiles.

The House, in the first go-round on the bill, refused to allow any money for a conventional non-nuclear carrier. The Senate then voted 380 million dollars for an atomic-powered carrier. In working out a compromise, Senate and House conferees settled on the 35-million-dollar planning item.

Predicting the carrier would never advance beyond the planning stage, Cannon said this was an absolute waste of money.

Another section of the money bill provides an added 100 million dollars to be used, if the Defense Department wishes, to boost the Marines and Army reserves beyond strengths proposed by President Eisenhower. This money would be pay for 25,000 more Marines and 30,000 more Army reservists. It barred from use for any other purpose.

Boy Takes Life At Conference

PORT JERVIS, N. Y. (AP)—A 14-year-old boy attending a Bi-State Bible Conference near here, hanged himself Tuesday night, authorities announced.

Investigators refused to discuss the youth's name or other details of the suicide. But they did confirm that the boy was attending the conference, being held at Montague, N. J., a short distance across the New Jersey line.

The conference, a Protestant gathering, brings together delegates from New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Integrated Schools To Be Reopened

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—The Little Rock School Board Tuesday night announced it would reopen the city's four high schools on an integrated basis one week from Wednesday.

The schools, closed since Sept. 12, 1958, to prevent integration, had been scheduled to reopen Sept. 8.

The move apparently was designed to head off possible interference with school opening by Gov. Orval E. Faubus and the Legislature.

Six Negroes have been assigned by the board to attend once-white schools.

Bill Drafted To Rebuild Job Fund

HARRISBURG (AP)—Gov. Lawrence said Tuesday legislation to bolster the state's depleted unemployment compensation fund is being whipped into shape and might be ready by next week.

But he refused to say whether he would recommend a special payroll tax to rebuild the fund which is expected to drop to a low of 100 million dollars by the end of the year.

A special advisory committee on unemployment compensation told the governor last week a higher payroll tax would be needed should the Legislature increase the maximum benefits of $35 a week for 30 weeks.

Rate Suggested

It suggested, but did not formally recommend, that a rate of 0.7 percent—on top of the 2.7 percent now paid by employers—could be considered.

Asked if he would go along with the 0.7 percent boost, or any part of it, the governor told his news conference: "We have to work out with the actuaries."

Among other things the committee recommended that the fund be steadily rebuilt to 300 million dollars over the next three years, but its members could not reach agreement on ways to plug many alleged loopholes in the present jobless benefits law.

Lawrence said administration officials are studying the committee report to work up legislation.

13-Day Trip Will Cover Many Stops

WASHINGTON (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev will see North, South, East and West under plans shaping up for his history-making tour of the United States.

President Eisenhower is expected to fly to Europe the last week in August, in his meet-the-Allies jaunt preparatory to receiving Khrushchev here. Eisenhower will later go to the Soviet Union, returning Khrushchev's trip.

Details of the Eisenhower travels are still being worked out. Diplomats said Tuesday it is not yet decided whether the President will try to see the chiefs of Britain, France and Germany just at Paris or will stop off elsewhere too—such as at London.

Wide View
But as for Khrushchev's 13-day visit to this country, expected to start Sept. 15, U. S. authorities hope to impress the Kremlin No. 1 man with a wide view of American life.

A prime aim in inviting Khrushchev here has been to dispel misconceptions U. S. officials feel Khrushchev holds about the United States.

There are some things Khrushchev wants to see here. There are others Washington would like to show him. The exact arrangements are still under negotiation. An itinerary now under discussion was reported to include these possible stopping points for Khrushchev:

Washington, for a three-day official visit which would include two state dinners given for him and one Khrushchev would give for Eisenhower in return.

New York, where United Nations officials said Khrushchev may wish to address the General Assembly.

Midwest Farm
Chicago, and a farm in the Midwest. Khrushchev has let it be known he would like to see an American farm.

San Francisco, a favorite of foreign visitors.

Texas.

Perhaps Florida.
An industrial area—which U. S. officials want Khrushchev to see—perhaps Pittsburgh or Detroit.

Invitations for the Soviet leader piled up from a number of American cities.

Security officers who will have the job of guarding the Soviet leader in this country suggested the job might be no more difficult than was the safeguarding of the visiting Kozlov and First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan earlier this year.

Khrushchev is on an official visit. That means he will be treated comparatively closely to a predictable schedule. In the security men's view, this is preferable to the free-wheeling ventures of Kozlov and Mikoyan.

Hope Held Out In Steel Talks

NEW YORK (AP)—Union and industry officials met face-to-face again Tuesday in efforts to end the nation's crippling three-weeks-old steel strike. A federal mediator detected a hopeful note.

At the end of a 2½-hour joint session, the federal mediator, Joseph F. Finnegan, said steelworkers President David J. McDonald and L. Conrad Cooper, top industry negotiator, "seemed to be tackling the problem in a less sterile way" than before.

Lawrence Supports New Point System For Suspending Operators' Licenses

HARRISBURG (AP)—A point system leading to suspension or revocation of operators' licenses for Motor Vehicle Code violations was proposed Tuesday in the Senate.

The bipartisan measure won the backing of Gov. Lawrence at a morning meeting with its sponsors, said Sen. William J. Lane (D-Washington).

Four other measures providing for a point system for motor vehicle violations had been submitted earlier in the General Assembly. But the new bill is believed to represent the best thinking of the previous proposals.

Lane said the proposal had the backing of labor, but added he did not know whether auto clubs would approve it.

He said the present plans were to put the new system into effect next Jan. 1.

Asked by a newsman what would happen to penalties recorded against motorists under the existing license suspension law, Lane replied: "Everyone will have to start with a clean slate. Otherwise it would be unconstitutional." Under the measure, point values would be assigned for the first time to various moving violations. Parking violations are not involved.

A record of violations will be kept on each operator for a period of three years, then erased.

A driver's license would be revoked for two years if he received 25 points for any one offense. An example would include a fourth speeding conviction in a 12-month period.

Korean Vets Need Papers For Bonus

FRANK J. WELLER, Monroe County director of veterans affairs, yesterday issued a statement clarifying documents needed by Korean veterans to apply for the Pennsylvania bonus.

Veterans whose separations papers have been recorded in the office of the recorder for this or any other county should request from that office a certified copy of Form 214, separation papers. A nominal fee is charged.

If the separation paper has not been recorded, it should be taken to the recorder's office for processing and a certified copy asked for. There is no charge for registration, but a fee will be charged for the certified copy.

Missing Copies

If the separation form has been lost or destroyed, the veteran should apply to the Selective Service office in the Stroudsburg Post Office for a certified copy of the form.

If not drafted or enlisted in Monroe County, the veteran should write the Selective Service Board which has his records.

If a certified copy cannot be obtained by either of these methods, the veteran may apply through the veterans affairs office for a certificate from the branch of service in which he served.

In no case will the bonus bureau accept photostatic copies certified by jurat officers or notaries public. In cases where a veteran's service included more than one enlistment, both or all separation forms must be supplied showing the full term of service for which he is entitled to compensation.

60 Days

No applications are ready for distribution at this time and it may be up to 60 days before they are ready.

Weller said he expects to be called to a conference in Harrisburg sometime this month and it is expected more definite information will be available then.

The veterans affairs officer suggests that eligible veterans secure copies of separation papers as soon as possible to expedite processing after application forms are available.

Heat Exchange Conduit Patented By Drake Chief Engineer At Patterson-Kelley Co.

CHARLES E. Drake, of 411 Bryant St., Stroudsburg, chief engineer at the Patterson-Kelley Co. plant in East Stroudsburg, has been awarded a patent for a newly perfected instrument called the "Heat Exchange Conduit."

The specifications for patent number 2,895,508 show the following:

In the construction of heat exchangers, such as radiators, condensers, expansion coolers and the like, it is a common practice to provide the apparatus with fins so as to increase the area of contact with the fluid flowing through the device, and thus gain a larger area to actually transfer heat.

Simple Assembly

In a widely used arrangement, the fluid flows through the tube with an interior array of fins and, therefore, the mechanical bond between the fins and the tube must be strong enough to withstand the stresses incurred during the use of the exchanger. Under these circumstances, the method of assembly must be rather simple and heat-conductive for satisfactory results.

Using Drake's design, the internally finned, heat exchange conduit or tube meets these and other requirements. Specifically, his design provides an arrangement in which the tube and the fin component are made separately with the tube being force-fitted over the fins.

The unique design of the fins, made as so many legs, usually five, which extend radially from the core, terminate in flat outer, or foot-type, portions. Each leg of the fins is tapered so that it increases in width outwardly.

With corrugations on the side walls of the legs, the effective area of contact of the flowing fluid moving through the tube is increased. The patent has been assigned to the Patterson-Kelley Co., East Stroudsburg.

Boroughs List Drop In Income

STROUDSBURG and East Stroudsburg reversed a statewide trend by having lower revenues in 1957 than in 1956, it was revealed this week.

The Department of Internal Affairs in a publication, "Preliminary Summary: Cities, Boroughs, Townships Local Government Financial Statistics—1957," reported cities, boroughs and townships reported greater revenues in 1957 than in 1956.

Stroudsburg had receipts of $423,514.74 in 1956 and $277,511.96 in 1957, while East Stroudsburg reported receipts of $233,763.21 in 1956 and $174,084.26 in 1957.

7.61 Percent Rise
Boroughs throughout the state had 1957 revenues of $86,598,010 compared to $80,471,418 in 1956, for an increase of 7.61 percent.

Taxes, which make up the major item of income for both local boroughs, brought Stroudsburg $85,599.07 in 1956 and $84,119.87 in 1957. East Stroudsburg reported tax receipts of $59,177.71 in 1956 and $71,579.62 in 1957.

Total expenditures for Stroudsburg in 1956 were $429,923.66 compared to $265,485.73 in 1957, while East Stroudsburg had total expenditures of $233,763.21 in 1956 and $174,084.26 in 1957.

He had been admitted to the hospital Sunday.

A professional engineer, registered in Pennsylvania, he had been associated with the Health Dept. since 1927, and had held the post of regional sanitary engineer since 1940.

He received the "Arthur Sidney Bedell" award of the Federation of Sewage and Industrial Wastes Assn. at its annual dinner in Cincinnati, Ohio, on Oct. 13, 1954, for his work as secretary-treasurer of the state unit of the society for over 15 years.

Born in Bear Creek, he was the son of Mrs. Gertrude Stem Bush, of Kingston, and the late Peter Bush.

He had lived in Kingston most of his life before moving to Trucksville 14 years ago. His wife, the former Alberta Humpleby, died Nov. 10, 1957.

Education

He was a graduate of Wyoming Seminary and the Pennsylvania State University. He was a charter member and past president of the Luzerne County Chapter of the Pennsylvania Assn. of Professional Engineers.

Friends may call at the funeral home tonight and Thursday from 7 to 9 p. m.

Criminal Negligence Ruled Out In Blast

State Police Fire Marshal Makes Report

CRIMINAL negligence did not cause the gas explosion and flash fire which critically burned Firestone Tire Co. manager Robert C. Reeves, Deputy State Police Fire Marshal William Harfman said yesterday.

After inspecting the area of Saturday's accident in East Stroudsburg for two days, Harfman confirmed that the explosion in the Firestone store's cellar was caused by accumulated gas from a broken main under Washington St.

A heavy steel ball used by the contractor building the new Interborough Bridge to smash street pavement damaged the main, he said.

Inspects Main

Harfman said he inspected 138 feet of exposed main from the service pipe running into the store at a point opposite the National Guard Armory and found 24 breaks yesterday. He described all 24 as visible cracks.

The gas main lay between 26 and 30 inches below street level, he said. He added that there are no regulations governing the depth of such pipes.

Reeves suffered second and third degree burns over the upper half of his body in the explosion, which was set off when he lit a match while looking for tires stored in a pit.

He remains in critical condition at Monroe County General Hospital.

Exchange Of Visits

Considering his well known hatred toward a shooting war, it is not surprising that President Eisenhower is taking the lead in trying to ease cold war tensions by exchanging visits with Premier Nikita Khrushchev of Russia.

With fingers crossed, we entertain high hopes that Mr. Eisenhower is well aware of the many dangerous pitfalls lying ahead of him and earnestly pray that he is fully capable of dealing with the shrewd and ruthless Soviet leader.

Let us not forget that Communist domination of the entire world remains as the unshakable goal of the Kremlin. Less than two weeks ago, Mr. Khrushchev reminded us that Russia intends to accomplish this partly by outstripping the free world in industrial development as well as science.

"When we catch you up, in passing you by, we will wave to you," the premier said menacingly to Vice President Nixon.

Another warning came from the U.S.

Central Intelligence Agency, whose analysts believe it is not the Kremlin's present intention to advance Communism by deliberately provoking war.

"The danger," said Director Allen W. Dulles, "is rather in the slow attrition of the power position of the free world by a combination of political warfare, economic penetration and subversion."

All signs point to Russia throwing up every conceivable roadblock to world peace, so what good can possibly come out of an exchange of visits by the heads of government? one may ask.

Our own security demands that we keep our guard high, our powder dry and our eyes open to any avenues that promise strong guarantees of world peace.

If Mr. Khrushchev can carry back to Russia the feeling that America is determined to do its part in easing global tensions, but equally willing to fight to preserve its liberties, then his trip to this country will have accomplished a mighty useful purpose.

No Rest For The Comrades

Visitors to the USSR exposition in New York are dazzled by a score of varieties of TV sets, dozens of hi-fis and other luxury goods made in Russia. But they are not fooled into believing that these items have found their way into the hands of the average Russian worker.

In fact, Pravda has just complained that it takes months to find a pillow for sale. When one does find a pillow, the paper continues, it can't be bought without a special stamp in the purchaser's passport. And when the buyer at last lays down the weary head, he's gagged by the smell of the chickens that contributed the feathers.

Production schedules get bawled up like that in state planning. We've seen our own Government create artificial shortages of goods with price controls, and artificial surpluses of other goods through subsidies. An economic system seems today to be too complicated for efficient central administration.

So we can hope that when the day comes for Comrade Khrushchev to carry out his threat to "bury" us with production, some Russian bureaucrat will have forgotten to order the shovels.

The Pennsylvania Story

Critical Year For Demos

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — Next year is the big year — the critical year — for Pennsylvania Democrats, and they're gearing for it now.

Most certainly too it is an important year for Pennsylvania Republicans — but regardless of what happens in 1960, Pennsylvania Democrats will continue to rule Capitol Hill's executive branch.

Next year's importance to Keystone State Democrats is many-sided.

Presidential races are always critical affairs, oftentimes indicative of trends, and most certainly influential and many times decisive, in determining the outcome of local races.

The 1960 presidential showdown is not expected to be any exception.

Pennsylvania's Governor David L. Lawrence, who squiggled into office last year by a bare 76,000 majority over his Republican opponent, will be laying on the prestige line a half-century up and down political life.

Within that space of time he has become acknowledged as a master craftsman — a political old pro of the old school, hard to beat and difficult to outwit.

At age 70 he is one of the few remaining craftsmen of that type of bygone era.

Mr. Lawrence long has been recognized and respected on the national scene. As a Democratic National Committee man he pulls his full weight on the strategy front. He will have much to say as to who will be the Democratic presidential candidate next year.

Importantly, what Pennsylvania does next year in the presidential race will be the shot-caller for Pennsylvania Democrats — and old pro David L. Lawrence.

While Mr. Lawrence will remain in office regardless of what happens in 1960, that is not the focal point.

As matters stand now, Pennsylvania donkey riders have a little more than a fingernail grip on the Capitol Hill cliff. They hold the gubernatorial suite, the elective office of Secretary of Internal Affairs, and by two votes, control of the House of Representatives in the Legislature.

Republicans on the other hand hold the reins firmly in the State Senate and both the elective fiscal offices of State Auditor General and State Treasurer.

Next year however, all 210 seats in the House, half of the 50 seats in the Senate — and the now GOP-held offices of State Treasurer and Auditor General will be up for filling in the presidential runoff.

Will Mr. Lawrence be able to swing Pennsylvania into the Democratic presidential column? If he does, it will unquestionably swing along the two fiscal offices, as well as legislative control, at least in the House of Representatives.

And if he does — it will be the first time since 1944 that Pennsylvania will have fallen into the Democratic presidential column, and only the fifth time in the past 100 years.

Under the circumstances it isn't difficult to see why next year is the big year — the critical year — for Pennsylvania Democrats, and why they are girding for it now.

They have their fingernail grip on Capitol Hill. What happens in 1960 undoubtedly will determine whether that fingernail is ripped loose or whether they are pulled over the top.

Embarrassing Moment

George Sokolsky Says...

Nixon At Armageddon

Three facts seem to stand out clearly in all the fold-out of the Nixon tour in Russia. I use the phrase, fold-out, not crutch, because the nature of a state visit is, what it always has been, a fussy arranged tour for political or economic purposes.

Therefore, the student of the current situations must seek beyond the parade for results and accomplishments.

1. The main objection to a Summit Conference has been that Nikita Khrushchev uses every event not only for propaganda purposes but for his private type of buffoonery and in the end, nothing is accomplished. The first Geneva Summit Conference on Germany (1955) was a total failure for this reason. Khrushchev clowned it into absurdity.

However, Khrushchev was then competing with Bulganin for leadership. He actually barged into that conference, the official delegate being Bulganin.

Also, he had not yet broken the power of Malenkov, Molotov and Kaganovich and had plenty of opposition in Moscow. He posed a role and got away with it, but he spoiled the chance for further conferences.

Also, it was the first time he had experienced such a gathering and he either had to face the great men in awe or project himself as a kid showing off before his elders. He did the latter and President Eisenhower quite naturally felt that he would try to avoid such an unpleasant and meaningless experience.

Khrushchev, however, represents the personal ostracism by his equals over the world and is pressing the point with all the propagandistic and diplomatic machinery at his control.

It is probably true of Khrushchev, as it was of Stalin, that Great Britain and France play a small role in his calculations. The United States looms large.

Therefore, a state visit to the United States seems to be the proposal that grows out of the Nixon visit. If such a visit should eventually Khrushchev would have to behave properly or he will do great damage.

2. Nixon has handled himself well in Soviet Russia with rare skill. He showed no fear of crowds; he exhibited unusual dexterity in impromptu debate; he turned the peace propaganda wheel into an American instrument; he possesses none of the stuffed-shirt qualities which foreigners expect from American officials.

Enormous numbers of Russians had an opportunity to see him and the general report is that they liked him. Whereas the Russian propaganda machine was at work to trip him into anger or error, he avoided or rather evaded all their little tricks, including the bum cement they used on the American Fair buildings.

It takes a special kind of personality to keep one's temper without losing one's dignity — Nixon apparently has it, or has trained himself to meet this type of situation.

The result of this is a different picture of an American than has appeared in the literature and cartoons in Russia. Here is no fat capitalist with a huge cigar in his mouth green dollars falling out of his pockets, demanding war for his own profits.

Here is a youngish-looking proletarian, the son of a grocer, second man in the country, asking for peace. It unquestionably will lessen the Russian people's fears of the United States.

3. Whereas both Mikoyan and Kozlov, while they were in the United States, saw everything they wanted to see, the Russians tried to limit Nixon's visit. They did to a certain extent.

But he fought them tooth and nail and the Russians discovered that they were not dealing with namby-pamby Westerners who fear war more than life itself.

Both Vice President Nixon and Admiral Rickover told them where they got off when they tried to cover up or change the rules or play the usual bayish tricks which seem so important to Russians and make them not feared but distrusted throughout the world.

They discovered that Americans are not easily pushed around. They can be generous but not suckers. Nixon exacted as much as he could out of the agreements concerning these visits. And it has all been beneficial to this country.

Fundamentally, the reasons for visits of Mikoyan, Kozlov and Nixon are identical. The United States and Soviet Russia have, for a year, been close to war — on the brink, as John Foster Dulles put it.

Neither side wants war. The objective is to use psychological steps to minimize the prospect of war. Such a program could be worked out without complication except that the Russians like tricks. They are, after all, a nation of chess players.

Word To The Wise

Dear Abby: Simply because a person is on relief is no reason for nurses and doctors to call them by their first names. I took a 98-year-old woman to the hospital (she was a county case) and the nurse said, "Okay, Annie, what's your trouble?" I reminded her that the woman was refined, dignified and approaching the hundred mark, but she persisted in calling her "Annie." The doctor did this, too. You'd think they would use better judgment. Lord knows, it's bad enough to be on relief without having one's dignity stripped away by such uncalled-for familiarity. INDIGNANT

Dear Indignant: Many patients enjoy the friendly sound of their first names when being addressed by nurses and doctors. If your aging friend showed any signs of displeasure (not YOU, SHE) the doctor and nurse would surely have noticed it and ceased. I doubt if they meant to "strip her dignity away."

Dear Abby: Do you think a girl makes a mistake when she marries a man knowing he must go overseas the day after the wedding? I did, and now I am beginning to wonder. "WONDERING"

Dear Wondering: If you are now "wondering" — you probably did.

Dear Abby: I won't tell you my real name because I don't want anyone to know where I am. I ran away from home because I couldn't get along with my family. My father never made a decent living for us and I hated him all my life. I had no respect for my mother. I work steady now but spend it all on clothes. I owe so much I can't face certain people. A friend of mine offered me a job where I won't have to DO anything immoral — just make it appear so. (It's getting "caught" with men whose wives hire people to get evidence for divorce.) Could I get into any trouble taking jobs like this? NOTHING TO LOSE

Dear Nothing: If you know what's good for you you'll not involve yourself in any "jobs" of this nature. Stick to an honest day's pay for an honest day's work. And, live within your income — or the outcome could spell trouble.

Dear Abby: I've been going with an attractive, intelligent man for three years. He's in his 40's and I am in my 30's. I am considered equally attractive. My big problem is that he constantly (in my presence) looks over cheap girls books and magazines with pictures of unclothed women. He has a big collec-

Looking At Japan

Promise Of Paradise Eludes Traveler

Editor's Note: (Almost 15 years old, Jonathan is touring Japan and is forwarding these short articles on how Japan looks to a boy of his age. This is the seventh.)

By Jonathan Brown
On the first clear day we had had in over a week, Nobu (my Japanese companion) and I went to Kobe to see the ship-building yards, the biggest in Japan. I was impressed by its huge size and one beautiful ship reminded me of my promise to get a job on a freighter just as soon as I can.

In the afternoon we went up into the mountains and saw Kobe stretched along the sea below us. Unlike most cities it is very, very narrow because of the mountains at its back and so it stretches as far as the eye can see.

On the way down we took a trolley car and it seemed as if we were going almost straight down most of the way. The scenery was wonderful. The mountains are very green because of the large amount of rain in Japan.

The next day we visited Nara, capital of Japan in the eighth century, and saw the signs through a very heavy rain. In the U. S. it might have been called a small hurricane. In the Para park we offered food to the tame deer but only three ventured out in the driving rain.

I also saw a five-storied pagoda, which was over 500 years old. It amazed me how it could have lasted through all of the typhoons. I wanted to climb it but we were on a tour and there wasn't enough time.

In the afternoon we saw the biggest wooden building in the world which houses the big Buddha. It is as tall as a three-story building and covered with dust since it is dusted only once every half-decade.

In this building is a wood post with a hole in it. A "saying" goes that whoever can crawl through it will go to paradise. I tried it... but on getting half-way I found that I was stuck. Couldn't go forward or backward.

Nobu managed to pull me out by the legs and after getting out with only minor bruises, I resolved that it was only for babies and very skinny people.

I also visited a print shop and couldn't resist buying three prints though my money is running short. I also wanted very much to go back to Nara but we didn't have enough time because we wanted to get back to Tokyo to see the fireworks on the Sumida river since this was probably the last year they would have them.

That night we went to a Japanese restaurant and I had broiled chicken and afterwards,

Apportionment Of Earnings

By William A. Doyle

Investment Analyst
Q. How are a company's earnings apportioned to the common and preferred stocks?

of the company's preferred stocks have the same par value. When a company has different issues of preferreds, with different par values, this gets more complicated.)

Then, to figure the earnings on each share of common, you deduct the dividends required to be paid on the preferred from the net income available for dividends and divide that figure by the number of common shares outstanding.

Here's a fast example:

XYZ Corp. earned $10 million in a certain year. It has 100,000 shares of $100 par, 4 percent preferred stock and one million shares of common stock outstanding.

Dividing the $10 million net income by the 100,000 outstanding preferred shares, you can easily see that the earnings on each share of preferred came to $100.

Each one of those preferred shares is entitled to $4 a year in dividends — 4 percent of the par value. So, the total preferred dividend requirements are $400,000.

To get the par share earnings on common, you deduct that $400,000 from the $10 million (getting a figure of $9.6 million) and divide by the one million common shares outstanding. The answer is that the earnings on each common share come to $9.60.

Q. I have held common stock in a certain company for a number of years. In 1956 I received a number of shares of preferred stock as a stock dividend. If I sell the preferred stock now, how do I figure or loss for tax purposes? I do not have all my records and broker's statements on this stock.

A. There's one record you should have. At the time you received the preferred, you undoubtedly also received a copy of either a ruling by the U.S. Treasury Department or a legal opinion by the company's counsel on how it was treated for tax purposes. The Treasury Department has since stopped issuing such rulings.

The ruling or opinion would tell you if the preferred was in the form of a tax-free distribution or not. It would tell you how to figure your "tax cost basis" on the common you held and the preferred you received.

It would also tell you whether or not the distribution fell under Section 306 of the Internal Revenue Code. If it did, the preferred is what accountants call "tainted stock." There's nothing wrong with "tainted stock." But if you sell "tainted stock," your profits are taxable at regular income tax rates — not the lower capital gains tax rate.

These distributions of one type of stock as a stock dividend on another kind of stock often get very involved. So, if you have lost your copy of the Treasury ruling or legal opinion, write to the company for another copy.

'Higher! Higher!'

Armed with grease guns, scout team is ready to board a 'copter. From left: Capt. Bayard S. Pickett, Charleston, S. C., company commander; S/Sgt. William V. Schmitz, Newton, N. J.; Sgt. Lewis L. Bryant, Allentown, Pa.; Sgt. Irving B. Tchakirides, Waterbury, Conn., and Cpl. Harold D. Dickinson, Framingham, Mass. Boat is rolled up.

Sergeant Tchakirides, 23, is poised at the 'copter door, waiting for the jump signal.

Sailing toward the sea. Mission-bound, Marine scouts head for shore.

ON A RECENT AFTERNOON, a U. S. Marine helicopter circled slowly off Onslow Beach, N. C. The 'copter suddenly dropped down to a 50-foot altitude and five Marines, wearing camouflage utility, leaped, in rapid succession, into the swells of the Atlantic ocean. Watching the jump on shore, two companies of Leathernecks shouted lustily, "Higher! Higher!" Lt. Col. Ephraim Kirby-Smith, commander of Camp Lejeune's Second Reconnaissance Battalion, Second Marine Division, said proudly, "The higher they go, the better these boys like it." The jump was part of an intensive, year-long experiment the battalion has been carrying out to develop another technique of entry into enemy territory by reconnaissance troops. In the past scouts were slipped ashore from submarine, destroyer or seaplane; others were parachuted. Lieutenant Colonel Kirby-Smith said, "The nuclear war concept requires a dispersal of forces. Where we formerly reconnoitered one or two miles in front of established areas of operation, we now have to think in terms of 10, 20 and 30 miles or more." The 'copter technique has several variations. In the method illustrated, the Marine version of the Sikorsky S-55 helicopter jettisons a 14-foot inflatable rubber boat about a mile off-shore, and then drops a team of five Marines clothed in camouflage suits and sneakers. When they are in the boat, a cargo net containing weapons and radio gear is lowered to them. They paddle ashore, hide the boat, conduct their patrol, radio back, or paddle back out to a 'copter.

ANYONE WHO likes decorating with books, records, bric-a-brac etc., will find the pattern offered below especially interesting. It takes all the mystery out of building bookcases around a window or door. It also tells how to build an indirect lighting valance.

Step-by-step directions tell how to measure space available then how to estimate the exact materials required. All materials specified in purchase list are stock size and readily obtainable at lumber yards everywhere.

If the room and space available lends itself, this unit can be used to house a TV or Hi-Fi record changer or speaker.

Any number of interesting built-ins can be constructed by following the pattern method of construction.

Prepare Surface Before Painting

PAINT manufacturers know what their product will or will not do. But they are not likely to give you a guarantee because they have no assurance you will do the things necessary to enable the product to do its work.

A large percentage of paint failures is caused by inadequate preparation of the surface. Without this necessary step, even the best quality paint is likely to prove disappointing.

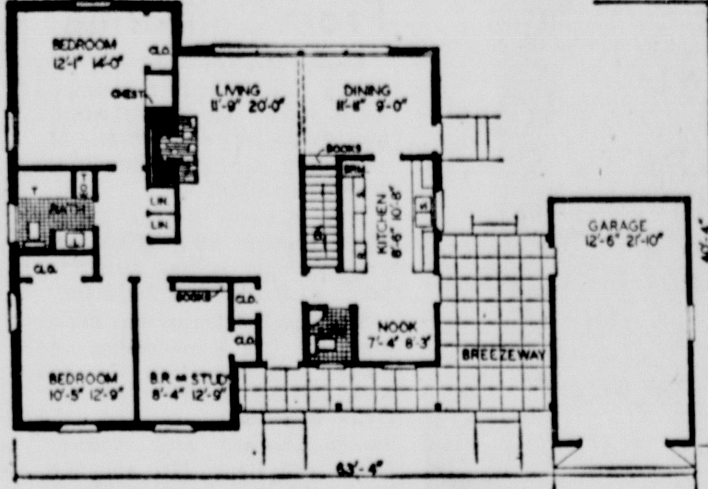

In general, all surfaces to be painted must be free of dirt, dust, oil and grease and, in the case of metal, free of rust or other corrosion. If solvent-thinned paints are used, the surface must be dry, a requirement that is not necessary for water-thinned latex paints.

Parade of Homes

DESIGN H-493

House, 1,343 Sq. Ft.
24,496 Cu. Ft.
Garage, 302 Sq. Ft.

This House Has Many Advantages

COMFORT and convenience are combined with the best elements of modern building in this week's featured design, H-493. Planned for a limited building budget, this distinctive three bedroom ranch nevertheless leaves little to be desired in the way of large rooms and overall livability.

The attached garage and open breezeway enhances the low sweeping lines of its brick and board and batten exterior. Broad, overhanging eaves shield the elongated grade-level porch and also protect the interior from the sun's direct rays at mid-day.

Inside, modified hallways provide unrestricted access to each area for smooth traffic flow. Opening into a vestibule, the front entrance permits direct approach to either the living room at the rear or kitchen on the right and sleeping area on the left.

Virtually the entire back wall of the spacious living room and dining area is devoted to four floor-to-ceiling picture windows. A natural stone fireplace is also featured.

Efficient Kitchen

A corridor type kitchen promises step-saving efficiency for the homemaker and permits additional cabinet and counter space in a limited area. A breakfast nook has been provided by a window.

As the main bath is located in the sleeping area, the designer has thoughtfully provided a half bath between the nook and main entrance.

The sleeping area boasts of three good sized bedrooms, plenty of storage facilities and cross ventilation in the larger two bedrooms. A built-in chest is a bonus in the master bedroom.

As this home has a basement, heating and laundry facilities are located here. Both, however, are grouped in one area enabling clear, unobstructed space for a recreation room.

1,343 Square Feet

The plan conforms to general FHA, VA and Building Code requirements. The plan contains 1,343 square feet, 24,496 cubic foot, and 302 square feet in the garage. Your builder or material supplier can give you the average cost per square or cubic foot in your area.

"Complete Building Plan, including Detail Sheet, Material List and Specifications Guide for Des. Most Homes Seriously Underlighted

IT IS THE opinion of illuminating engineers (that's what they call themselves) that most homes in the United States are seriously underlighted.

While there have been some increases in the lighting levels in newer homes in recent years, the levels recommended by the experts are not always achieved. In the building boom after World War II, a minimum of three per cent of any moderate home-building budget should have been appropriated for lighting. But in a majority of homes, this allowance was often cut by 50 percent or more.

In 1952, there were signs of a public awakening to the lighting facts of life. By 1958 many architects and builders had gradually inched up to the levels recommended in 1952.

And some householders began to make demands for improved illumination, if only because they were becoming aware of the attractiveness of better lighting.

During this six year period, however, a team of vision experts had conducted extensive studies at the University of Michigan to measure the human eye's difficulty in seeing. In practical terms, these experts sought a basis for computing how much light the eye needs to perform working-and-living tasks efficiently and with a minimum of stress. They discovered that most seeing tasks actually required up to 150 per cent more light than the 1952 recommendations. Thus, the 1952 levels already are obsolete.

Trees, Shrubs Need Attention

MOST recent addition to the roster of household helpers is the tree-sitter. One of the national tree surgery companies suggests that vacationing families take on temporary aid to make sure the trees and shrubs receive food and water while the regular custodians are away.

As a matter of fact, anyone who plants a large garden of vegetables and flowers and who cultivates more than a basic minimum of grass and trees should stay home and tend his crops during the peak growing months—which in this section extends through September.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Running pictures of fur coats may be one way of bringing hot weather back, just as washing the car or watering the lawn brings rain, taking a bath makes the phone ring, housecleaning brings unexpected company and exulting in your good fortune brings unhappiness.

Intellectually, we realize that these things really don't represent cause and effect, but coincidence. Which doesn't make us stop waiting after the first two misfortunes for the third to fall, or knocking on wood when we've bragged a bit.

"Too good to last" is a phrase that is always cropping up—certainly, it was true about the weather we've had since Sunday and maybe we find some consolation in being proved right in our melancholy prophecies.

Doesn't take much of a prophet to predict that the most exciting events of the summer will probably take place during the last two weeks in August when I'm on vacation. Already listed are the kitchen tour—which I remember with such delight from two years ago when the Woman's Club put it on—and a couple of very important weddings.

There's a lot of exciting things coming up in the next ten days, too, but when the clouds closed in yesterday so did a social silence. I don't know whether everybody sized the opportunity to take a nap, get caught up on their reading, or just sit quietly and brood.

Whatever they were doing they weren't calling me. And a social desk without any socializing is a pretty dull place. You can clean out desk drawers, yawn, re-read the paper, and stare at the typewriter. None of which produces ideas—for that you need people. Yoo-hoo!

She Danced To Success By Voluntary Efforts

By Anne Heywood
"There are no clumsy girls—only lazy ones," says Mildred Rogers, whose dancing school in Kew Gardens, N. Y., is so successful that I've heard about it from any number of sources.

Although she is quick to admit that a few people have the talent and perseverance for a career in dancing, Mildred believes that any girl can become graceful and self-confident by studying it. In fact, she has classes now for boys as well as girls (together, fortunately!) in what she calls Social Graces—which is ballroom dancing and much more.

How It Happened
Mildred Rogers has been dancing since she was 11. For many years she was a professional on the stage. She never would have done much about it, chances are, except that she was trying to raise funds for a social agency in her town. The only way she could think to do it was by giving dancing lessons at her home for a nominal fee and donating said nominal fee to the agency.

In other words, she began with a volunteer job. Then, as is always the case, the demand began to grow. The mothers began to gang up on her and insisted a regular fee. So she opened a real studio and set up regular classes.

Pavlova's Partner
Mildred Rogers takes her work seriously. Trained by Luigi Albertini, dancing partner of the immortal Pavlova, Mildred has made ballet the key subject, the cornerstone of the program. She takes special pains with careful schooling in

THE CASUAL LOOK in fur coats is demonstrated at the left by the trench coat, designed by Jeanne Campbell that can be worn belted or loose. Here it is shown in beige dyed hair seal. At the right, the Lombard-look coat by Pembroke Squires is a great coat in antique gold-dyed muskrat flanks and carries a full tuxedo collar of matching antique gold-dyed lynx. The coats were designed for the Young Designers Collection of the Fur Information and Fashion Council.

Trench Coats In Fur For Casual Look; Tuxedo Collars Recall Lombard-Look

By Dorothy Roe
Associated Press Women's Editor
This is the year to be casual about precious furs.

In line with the general trend of the season, it's smart to wear the most fabulous pelts cut on the most informal lines this Fall. New fur coats are more luxurious than ever, but designed with the simplest styling.

Chinchilla overalls or a sable shirt would be right in line with the new mode.

Many of the new fur coats use two kinds of fur for added drama, as for instance a white beaver greatcoat with a dark mink collar, or the combination of broadtail and leopard. The polo coat and the Chesterfield are important fur coat silhouettes. Belted waistlines are important, and jackets are longer, with deep, roomy armholes. Some of the newest fur jackets are cut like riding coats, fitted at the waist. Capes outshine the stole this year, in all lengths, from shoulder capelets to full-length mantles, closehugged. A favorite of the season is the tailored overcoat in an opulent fur, with notched lapels in a contrasting pelt. Variety is the rage of the season. Mink is still with us in all its mutations, but also present and gaining in importance are such furs as chinchilla, otter, opossum, spotted skunk, leopard, lynx, beaver, Alaska fur seal, Southwest African Persian lamb and Norwegian blue fox, as well as all the other foxes, from red to silver.

The Wyckoff Shopper
"the friendly store"
Wyckoff
PHOTOGRAPHY, PA.

One of the most interesting sections of Wyckoff's is the picture framing department, housed in a small, attractive white building at the rear of our main store, and presided over by Walter Logan. It is more than just a department... it is often a gallery where you can study a wide variety of art from primitive to modern.

In addition to the pictures brought in for framing, there are ready-made frames (including one for baby's picture with a place around the prettily designed border for the engraving of dates and other pertinent, precious information... and another, bright gold, shaped like a large fan)... moldings of all types, both foreign and domestic, suited to almost any picture one might own... artist's supplies, including pads, pastels, tubes of oil paint, canvas boards, easels, and such.

Almost always in evidence are some of the gaily colored water color bouquets by Olive Bond, and a few Heiden landscapes. But Saturday, I noticed there were others which had to be framed by closing time... one was a tall, slender panel, bearing the figure of a girl, by Strauser. The owner had selected a molding in which silver predominated... and the effect was most pleasing. Another was a juncle scene by Victor Joseph Gatto, the primitive artist. Imaginative and charming, it showed the jungle by moonlight—the tree trunks veiled in a soft, gentle blue, the boughs overhead dripping graceful green moss, and four lions reclining in the foreground. Each little blade of grass stood out distinctly, even when one viewed the picture from far across the room. This was being framed in delicate green, with a facing of white.

Never before had I seen anyone frame a picture, and I decided to see how it was done. It was a far more intricate process than I had imagined, and Walter worked painstakingly so it would be just right. First came the measuring... this, of course, had to be precise, and I could appreciate that it required skill, for I am one of those people lacking the patience required in such things. Then came the diagonal cutting of the corners. Fastening a long and a short piece together in the vise, after first gluing the corners firmly together, holes were drilled (a process that reminded me of a dental office) and nails inserted. Putty was then applied to camouflage the holes, and colored to match the molding as nearly as possible. The four sides were fastened together... the picture inserted (an absolutely perfect fit each time) and a backing cut to size. The heavy cardboard was stapled into place, masking tape was applied all around, and trimmed off neatly at the corners. Once again Walter made measurements on the back of the frame... this time to determine where the hooks for hanging should go. These were inserted, a wire was run through and attached, and the A. B. Wyckoff name was pasted at the back, with his own name stamped above.

Maybe it sounds easy... but if, at any point, the workmanship had been sloppy, the effect would be ludicrous. This, I think, is important to remember. A good frame, wisely chosen and skillfully made, can add much to the beauty and value of a picture. A frame chosen with only price in mind... or selected because it just happens to fit... can make the loveliest painting look unimpressive and cheap.

Walter tells me that right now he is so busy he'll be glad when Labor Day comes. EVERYONE is painting... and those who do not, are buying paintings. There has been a tremendous interest in art here in our county within the past few years. We are happy this is true—and happy too that so many people realize it is always wise to FRAMMALLY frame your friends, IF your friends are pictures!

Tigers, Tribe Win

Lary Halts Yanks

NEW YORK (AP)—Frank Lary, an accomplished Yankee killer, beat New York for the fifth straight time this season Tuesday night 4-3 as Detroit made it 11 out of 15 over the Yanks.

From the moment Neil Chrissy hit his sixth home run off the right field foul pole in the fifth inning, Lary had a lead he never yielded. The Tigers wound up with three runs off loser El Grba in the first and added another in the third.

Mickey Mantle's 21st home run in the first inning — his first since July 19 — and Elston Howard's 13th homer in the eighth accounted for the first two Yank runs off Lary. It was Lary's 14th victory, a six-hitter, and Grba's third defeat. Marv Throneberry doubled and scored on two infield outs for the final

Francona Roars
WASHINGTON (AP)—Tito Francona drove in four runs with a homer and triple Tuesday night as Cleveland whipped Washington 8-2, the 17th loss in a row for the Senators.

The major league mark for consecutive defeats is 20, shared by the 1906 Boston Red Sox team and the Philadelphia Athletics of 1916 and 1943. The Senators team loss mark is 18 in a row, set in 1949.

Jim Perry, a jinx this year for the Senators, pitched six-hit ball in beating Washington for the third time and marking up his eighth win for the year against three defeats.

Perry missed a shutout when Jim Lemon socked a homer in the fourth inning with one on, his 25th of the season and 100th of his major league career.

Francona, hitting 416 for the season, sparked the four-run Indians rally in the third inning with his triple that drove in two runs, scoring himself on a Senator error. He hit his 12th home run in the seventh after Minnie Minoso walked.

Miss Gibson Disappointed Over Bypass
NEW YORK (AP)—Althea Gibson said Tuesday she was a little disappointed but not bitter over her omission from the U.S. Wimbledon Cup tennis squad which meets Britain later this month.

"I wanted to play, certainly, because I wanted to represent my country," the world's foremost woman player said. "I advised Mrs. Du Pont (Margaret du Pont, captain and committee chairman) of my availability."

"But the team probably was picked on the basis of tournament performances. Since I have not played in any tournaments this year, I have no kick coming."

The British beat the United States last year for the first time in 28 years. Miss Gibson, reigning Wimbledon and U.S. champion at the time, lost a heartbreaking match to Britain's Christine Truman.

Named to the U.S. team were Wimbledon runner-up Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif.; Beverly Fleitz of Long Beach, Calif.; Sally Moore of Bakersfield, Calif.; Jeanne Arth of St. Paul; Janet Hopps of Seattle and Mrs. Du Pont of Wilmington, Del. Miss Hopps and Mrs. Du Pont are co-captains.

The series — three singles and two doubles matches — will be played Aug. 15-16 at Sewickley, Pa.

Law Survives Card Homers
ST. LOUIS (AP)—Pittsburgh pitcher ace Vernon Law, twice staked to handsome leads, gave up a solo home run by Stan Musial and George Crowe's pinch-hit homer worth two RBI in subduing the St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday night 7-3.

Law claimed his 12th victory against seven losses. His 7-hit victory moved Pittsburgh into a fourth-place tie with Chicago. The loss went to fireballer Bob Gibson, starting his second game since he was brought up from Omaha. His first start was a 1-0 victory over Cincinnati last week.

Law led 3-0 after one inning and 6-1 after six innings before Crowe came off the bench and solved him for the two-run homer in the seventh. The Pirates had 12 hits against four St. Louis pitchers.

Pittsburgh quickly unloaded on Gibson for three runs on three hits and a walk.

Bob Skinner led off the game with a double and moved to third on an infield grounder. Roberto Clement's sacrifice fly scored Skinner. Rocky Nelson walked and Smokey Burgess doubled him home. Don Hoak followed with a single to score Burgess.

Return Title Fight Dims As Rosensohn Adds Fuel

Anderson's Double Gives Roberts 10th

CHICAGO (AP)—Harry Anderson's two-run double in the eighth inning Tuesday pulled the last-place Philadelphia Phils out of a four-game losing streak with a 2-1 victory over the slumping Chicago Cubs.

The Cubs, absorbing their sixth straight defeat, were held to five hits by Robin Roberts, who became the Phils first 10-game winner of the season. He has lost 10.

This was the ninth one-run game of the season between Philadelphia and Chicago and the Phils have won four of them.

Bob Anderson, now 7-8, went the distance for the Cubs and yielded eight hits, two of them coming in the decisive eighth.

Joe Koppe started the inning by walking, went to second on Ed Bouchée's single and to third when Dave Philley forced Bouchée at second. Anderson then

The Cubs only run came in the second inning. Dale Long singled, then went to third on Sammy Taylor's single. Long scored when Bobby Thomson forced Taylor at second.

Big 'Boys' In TV Bout In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP)—Two of the biggest heavyweights in the business, Sonny Liston of Philadelphia and Cuban Nino Valdes, will try to bomb each other into submission Wednesday night.

Liston, ranked the No. 3 contender by both the National Boxing Assn. and Ring Magazine, is a solid favorite to extend his winning streak through 18 bouts in the televised (ABC, 9 p.m. EST) 10-rounder at Chicago Stadium.

It will be scored under the five-point system.

Valdes, who like Liston is in the 212-220-pound category, peaked his 19 years of pro campaigning by once being rated a No. 1 contender. But of late he has slipped out of the rankings.

Last April he scored an eight-round knockout over Dan Hodge in Wichita, but a month later lost a decision to Alonzo Johnson in Madison Square Garden.

The 34-year-old Cuban has knocked out 35 foes in winning 48 of 67 starts. He has been kayoed four times.

In his last fight, April 15, Liston flattened Cleveland Williams in three rounds at Miami Beach. Last February he took care of Mike DeJohn in six rounds.

Liston, who has kayoed 15 opponents, has lost only once in 25 bouts. That was an eight-round split decision to Marty Marshall on Sept. 7, 1954, in Detroit. Later he knocked out Marshall in 6 and then defeated him again in 10.

Orioles Nip Chisox, 3-2

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore Orioles scored two unearned runs in the eighth inning Tuesday night to take a page from the Chicago White Sox book and hand the American League leaders a 3-2 defeat.

The loss by the White Sox, who had won 26 of 31 previous one-run victories, cut their lead over the Cleveland Indians to two games.

The winning Oriole rally brought stopper Billy Hoefs his first victory since coming to Baltimore in June from Boston and gave him a season record of 2-5. It dampened the hopes of 23-year-old Ken McBride for victory in his major league debut since being brought up last week from Indianapolis where he had an 11-5 record.

McBride was lifted in the eighth with the bases loaded on an error by substitute first baseman Norman Cash, a single by Joe Ginsberg and a walk to Brooks Robinson.

Turk Lown relieved McBride and struck out pinch-hitter Willie Tasby for the second out. However, he walked pinch-hitter Bob Nieman to force in the tying run at 2-2.

Rosensohn made his statement in a signed and copyrighted article in the issue of Sports Illustrated due Wednesday in which he indicated Patterson's manager, Cus d'Amato, would have called off the first fight had his terms not been met.

Rosensohn's article was the second bombshell dropped amid the strife-ridden Rosensohn Enterprises in 24 hours. Monday Rosensohn resigned as president and said he was attempting to sell his one-third interest for $75,000.

Dealings With D'Amato
His Sports Illustrated article brigs in the vague figure of one Charley Black, as well as detailing his version of his dealings with D'Amato, Vincent J. Velella and Irving Kahn.

Velella, an attorney who holds two-thirds of the organization's stock, named Kahn as a director last Friday — over Rosensohn's strenuous objection. Kahn is president of Tele-Promoter, Inc., which had the TV, radio and movie rights to the first fight, and has them for the rematch.

Rosensohn writes that Black, whom he described as close to D'Amato, was promised participation in the profits of the first fight at D'Amato's insistence, and because he, Rosensohn, desired to curry favor with the manager.

"D'Amato had pointed out that his previous promoter, Emil Lence, had always taken care of Charley," Rosensohn writes, "and D'Amato said Charley would have to participate in the profits of all Patterson fights."

Black was supposed to receive 50 per cent of the profits from the (Roy) Harris fight promotion." (Patterson knocked out Harris in Los Angeles, Aug. 18, 1958).

Velella was brought into the picture by Black, Rosensohn says. Velella offered unlimited backing for the promotions but he wanted to be equal partners with his friend Charley and Rosensohn. Black had been given a one-third profit sharing interest.

The magazine theorized that since Black seems to have owned a third of Rosensohn Enterprises before Velella assumed a full two-thirds and thus absolute control, Velella could not have done so without Black's acquiescence — and therefore D'Amato's.

The second fight has been tentatively scheduled for Sept. 22 with the site not yet announced. Johansson knocked out Patterson in the third round of the first encounter here last June.

Junior Golf Set To Open

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP)—Teen-age stars from all over the country start match play competition at Stanford Wednesday for the National Junior Golf Championship.

The opening field of 128, ranging in age from 12 to just under 18 years, will be cut in half by evening.

But those who lose out will not have traveled west in vain. They will be taken in to the Monterey Peninsula, as guests of Del Monte Properties, to play a consolation round over the Pebble Beach course.

The surviving 64 will go into as rugged a three-day session over Stanford Hills as they have ever encountered.

The 18-hole rounds are scheduled each day for Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Monroe Bowling Unit To Meet

Doesn't See Jensen Quitting

BOSTON (AP)—Boston Red Sox General Manager Bucky Harris said Tuesday he doesn't think outfielder Jackie Jensen will quit baseball at the end of this season. There have been repeated reports that Jensen, the American League's most valuable player last year, plans to hang up his spikes in September. Long absences from his family was given as the reason for Jensen's discontent.

Harris urged to attend as the election of officers for the coming year will be held at this time. Refreshments will be served following the meeting.

All-Stars Top Grid Bears, 7-6

RENSSELAER, Ind. (AP)—The college all stars had their first taste of professional football Tuesday and defeated the Chicago Bears 7-6 in an exhibition scrimmage at St. Joseph's College.

Lee Grosscup, making a bid for the starting quarterback job against the Baltimore Colts in Chicago's Soldier Field Aug. 14, directed a 99-yard drive which ended with the game-winning touchdown in the fourth quarter.

The Utah passing wizard culminated the thrust with a 33-yard aerial to Rice's Buddy Dial for the payoff and Michigan State's Sammy Williams booted the decisive point.

Early in the second quarter, Boyd Dowler of Colorado went back to punt for the all stars on his own 16. The Bears Eric Barnes blocked it. The ball was picked up by Bill George who ran 24 yards for the Bear touchdown. The attempted conversion failed when holder Ed Brown fumbled the ball.

The Anthracite Open had its biggest golfing turnout in history Monday when 224 linksmen, including 56 professionals vied for honors at Pocono Manor's 18-hole layout. However, officials of the hard-core tournament didn't reckon with the time element as quite a few had to tee off late in the afternoon and finally make the trek home in dusk or darkness.

Some officials said they didn't start on time, while others claim there were too long of intervals in between each foursome. Whatever the answer to the delay, it still took too long to run off the classic of area golf tournaments.

While the top scores came in with the afternoon tees, their late-starting obstacle proved just as troublesome as the hazards of the Pocono Manor course.

During our stay at the Manor during the day we heard many disgruntled golfers. Most complained that they had been at the course since early morning and were still waiting for tee off. Others beefed about the slowness of the foursomes ahead of them and still others just plain griped about everything in general.

Monday at the Manor was a day of hickering. In little confab among foursomes, arguments could be heard over this fellow and that one, especially on checking scores.

All-in-all though it was the biggest turnout for the Anthracite. Also three familiar names to the area took top booty as Stan Dudas won the pro side with a six-under-64 which was good for 250 bills.

Art Barni, popular Shawnee-on-Delaware golfer, captured the amateur competition with a four-under-68; and likeable Al Smith, assistant pro at Pocono Manor, gained the portable TV set for leading his Manor quartet to the best ball of foursome title with a 60.

Besides the 224 in competition a good-size crowd followed many of their favorites around the course. Stroudsburg and vicinity were well represented as Glen Brook professional Sam Kinder headed a delegation including John Bachman, Elmer Rinehart, Joe Small, Augie Lockwitch. Incidentally Rinehart had an eagle and was awarded an ace via a stroke handicap.

The top shot of the day—it was declared illegal—was performed by Floyd Geist, assistant professional at Reading's Berkleigh Country Club.

On the 18th hole Geist lodged a ball in the tree. With the aid of two of his partners, Geist got to their shoulders and blasted the ball out of the fork of the tree. He took a five on the par three 18th.

Vio Seixas, former Wimbledon tennis champion and one of the United States Davis Cup team's greatest netmen, played Straight Clark, one-time Yank hopeful, in an exhibition match at Buck Hill Falls tennis court last week.

Seixas, playing only periodically these days, beat Clark. Dave Ottaway, The Record reporter who viewed the match, was amazed at Seixas' serve and his over-all command of the court.

Just for the record Freddy Frantz, Stroudsburg Little League pitcher, has allowed only one hit in his last three games and has thrown two successive no-hitters in regulation games.

Against Slate Belt All-Stars in the LL runoffs a week ago Monday, Frantz stopped them on one safety. Saturday against Quakertown, Frantz no-hit them in six frames before forced to retire by the Little League ruling of pitching 12 innings in one week. Monday Freddy blanked Monroe Security Trust on no hits.

During this three-game span, Frantz struck out 40 batters or an average of better than two an inning.

New Drugs Developed To Fight Cancer

WASHINGTON — More than 100 anti-cancer drugs are now available for human patients.

This tremendously cheering research milestone was reached last month when a dozen new drugs were authorized for use at the famed National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Md., and in other hospitals and clinics throughout the country.

According to an NIH report soon to be made public, these latest drugs bring to 109 the number now in researchers' hands for clinical use on cancer patients.

This significant study lists the following as among the most promising anti-cancer drugs:

Cytosin and Tetramin — Developed in West Germany, and now being tested in the U. S. on cancer patients with very promising early reports.

5-Fluorodeoxyuridine — Developed by Dr. Charles Heidelberger, University of Wisconsin, under an NIH grant, and reported to be effective in curing several types of cancer.

2-Alpha-Methyl Dihydrotestosterone — A hormone that can be taken as a pill, which has shown good results in suppressing breast cancer in women.

6-Mercaptopurine Riboside — Excellent results in checking acute leukemia in children where other drugs have failed.

Only 22 anti-cancer drugs were available a year ago.

Now, through the research work of NIH and more than 150 institutions in the U. S. and abroad using NIH funds, the number of drugs has been increased over four-fold.

To date, some 100,000 compounds have been screened in developing the 109 acceptable anti-cancer drugs.

According to NIH scientists, no single drug has yet been found to cure cancer. But in a number of cases drugs have suppressed the cancer long enough to effect a cure in the future. For example:

In 1958, a four-year-old boy was afflicted with a kidney tumor and many nodules, characteristic of offshoots of the tumor, in both lungs. Because this condition was believed incurable, surgery was delayed to first test the effectiveness of drugs.

A month later, the tumor of the left kidney was removed, and the cancerous lung nodules disappeared after repeated doses of drugs were administered.

States the NIH report on the boy:

"At the present time, he is in excellent health, one year and two months since the last evidence of cancer was found. But it is still too early to say any more than that these drugs, on evidence to date, show tremendous advance toward stamping out the disease."

A number of other cases have been shown that drugs can suppress leukemia in children pending a future cure.

Doctors Treat Cancer With New Method Of Radiation That Barely Penetrates Skin

By Rennie Taylor
(Associated Press Science Writer)

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Doctors now are attacking deep cancer with a kind of radiation which normally does not penetrate much below the skin.

By using a trick they can make this radiation reach any point in the body of the biggest, fattest patient, and they can make sure it will go just so far and no deeper.

Risk Minimized

This means that parts of the body beyond the cancer target need not be subject to damaging radiation. With X-rays, the usual kind of radiation for cancer, some of the rays inevitably go beyond the target.

First results of the work here were described to science writers Dr. Henry S. Kaplan, head of radiology in the Stanford University Medical School. The school has just moved here from San Francisco.

The new method uses electrons instead of X-rays. Electrons are tiny particles carrying negative electrical charges. Like X-rays, they kill cancer by knocking other electrons off atoms that make up the molecules or building blocks of malignant cells.

The electrons come from an atom smasher called a linear accelerator. For about a year Stanford has been using a small edition of this instrument to produce 6 million volt X-rays. At 6 million volt X-ray will go all the way through the chest or abdomen.

Dr. Kaplan and associates used a similar but more powerful machine to produce electron beams. To reach an area half way between the chest surface and the surface of the back requires electron beams of 10 to 36 million volts.

A little of this radiation is taken by the part of the body between the skin surface and the deep target area but most of it stops right at the target depth. By aiming the radiation into the chest for a while and then into the back for a "mil-lir" period, the physicians get a maximum cancer-killing effect at the target area.

Hopeless Cases

The procedure, which is being tried in other cancer research centers, has been in use here a little less than a year. The Stanford group has treated eight hopeless cases. One of these still is alive with no sign of the cancer, Dr. Kaplan said.

The procedure is too new to tell what its ultimate value will be, but the first results indicate it is worth further trials, the physician added.

With the fish safely in his freezer at home, Walck was out trying for another one at the lake yesterday.

Medicines lose strength with age

All medicines lose some of their potency with the passage of time. Even household staples such as aspirin deteriorate in a few months. Check your medicine cabinet periodically and discard all "left-overs." Keep only fresh, potent medicines for your family use.

FOR THE VALUE-MINDED... an opportunity for fine-car ownership
at substantial savings

THE NEW 1959 LINCOLN

To the man willing to choose his Lincoln from a limited selection of models and colors, an unusual opportunity for fine-car ownership presents itself. Also available, at the moment, are a few executives' cars offering even greater savings. The mileage on these cars is so low and their appearance so new, that they would hardly be classified as demonstrators. Because this opportunity will appeal to the shrewd judge of values, these cars will not be here long. Early action is recommended.
